Bayside man unable to upgrade mobile home

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Bayside residents Frederick W. Rothwell Jr. and his wife Dorothy said they just don't understand why they have to continue living in an old run-down trailer when they have already made the down payment on a brand new double wide. The trailer is very tasteful, said Frederick, and meets or surpasses all the standards set forth by stringent housing standards.

"It's really more like a modular home," said Frederick. "And when you get the skirts on and it is all set up you couldn't tell it wasn't a house if you were passing by."

The Rothwells say they thought they Hancock County crewmen were busy Saturday morning at the Leetown Ballfield collecting non-hazardous rubbish and tires from the community's residents. The county crew included: Hurley Ladner, foreman; Howard Fleming and Eddie Seal, who were busy unloading debris and old tires. The collection netted an 18-wheeler of old tires, a dump truck of rubbish and a flatbed full of old washers, dryers and refrigerators. The special cleanup is a project of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee in cooperation with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and Road Crews. A collection will be held Sat., April 24, at the old Wal-Mart parking lot, Waveland; and on Sat., May 1, at the D'head Community Center.

CES at HMC

Coast Episcopal preschoolers were treated to a behind-the-scenes view of Hancock Medical Center during a recent field trip. The hospital offers on-site tours by appointment. According to marketing director Janet McQueen, allowing the students to walk through the hospital and meet physicians, nurses and other staff can lessen the anxiety associated with an emergency room visit or unexpected surgery. Call 467-8790 for information.

Fibromyalgia support group meets

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Sandy Harry Johnson will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Hancock County Fibromyalgia Support Group, which meets in the Seal Room of the Bay St. Louis/Hancock County Library at 7 p.m. Monday, April 26.

Johnson calls herself a lifelong learner on a healing journey. Her book, "The Growing Edge," describes her groundbreaking work at Mount Holyoke College, where she taught children and college students to "listen to their own bodies." Her method is being used by the LSU School of Nursing.

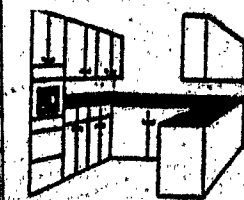

A graduate of Tulane and Harvard universities, Johnson is certified in The Trager Approach and was ordained by Zen Master Thich Nhat Hanh.

Led by her experience as patient and parent, Johnson now helps others learn to ease body, mind and spirit. According to her, "Dis-ease is an invitation to grow."

The support group meets on the first Monday of each month. Meetings last one hour.

For more information about the group, call Nan Ehrbright at 467-5563.

Keeping Up Our Recovery

Twice as many jobs were created in March than expected, more than 300,000 nationally.

That shows the U.S. economy is indeed rebounding with a total of 750,000 jobs added since September, thanks to tax cuts which are spawning economic activity. Yet Congress could do more. From a legislative standpoint, energy and transportation should be the top priorities of U.S.

Senators right now. Perhaps no two issues can propel our economy more than having good roads and affordable fuel prices.

FROM THE SENATE

By U.S. Senator
Trent Lott

Without passage of highway and energy bills, our economic recovery is at risk.

For years I've advocated passage of an energy bill that would create America's first national energy policy and lessen our dependence on foreign oil. With gas prices in Mississippi anywhere from $1.70 to almost $2 per-gallon following OPEC's decision to cut production, we're seeing once again the dilemma of our dependence on foreign countries for oil. America needn't shop countries like Iran or Saudi Arabia for oil. We don't have to.

We already have abundant domestic energy resources including oil, coal, nuclear power, hydro-power and natural gas. We must start developing our own domestic energy resources, and we must start providing incentives to foster budding, alternative energy resources, including solar power, wind power, fuel cells and biomass.

Weaning America off our

Who is seeking to influence votes?

Dear Editor:

Who is paying for attack ads in political campaigns in this state? Who are the people who are funneling millions of dollars into the coffers of political candidates?

Right now some groups are using loopholes to hide who's paying for mudslinging TV commercials that influence our elections. Some candidates are using loopholes to hide who is financing their campaigns.

But shouldn't the public have the right to know who is attempting to influence the political process in Mississippi?

Bills pending in the legislature (House Bill No. 1244 and Senate Bill No. 2858) would require more campaign finance disclosure.

Anyone who is against political subterfuge and believes in full disclosure of groups and individuals bankrolling campaign ads should urge their senator to support this legislation.

House Bill No. 1244, now awaiting action in the Senate, contains three important disclosure provisions that require the following:

1) disclosure of the source of funds for soft money ads;

2) disclosure of the identity of individuals or groups making loans or extending credit, information on how the money was used and repayment;

3) electronic reporting of sources of funds for candidates who raise $100,000 or more.

Some senators have fought these changes and worked to exempt certain groups from disclosure. Groups that spend millions to influence voters, however, should not be exempt from disclosing how much money they give to candidates.

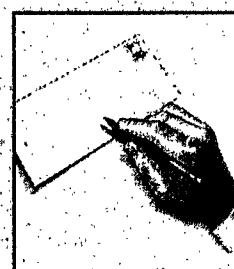

Lobbyists for groups seeking to defeat this campaign finance disclosure bill may have considerable power, but citizens can build their own clout by making their voices heard in the legislature.

We need to know who is seeking to influence our vote.

National VFW Ladies Aux. president visits Mississippi

Evelyn McCune, National President of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) of the United States, made her official visit to Mississippi April 1-3.

Mrs. McCune was elected to the highest office of the Ladies Auxiliary VFW at the 90th National Convention in San Antonio, Texas. She has represented the organization at military academies, the Annual National Veterans' Wheelchair Games, a tour of Europe, and has met with American troops and distributed Operation Uplink telephone cards so they can call their families. She leads the organization under the theme "Kindness, Love & Peace."

Sue Richard, Ladies Auxiliary VFW, Mississippi state president, of Kiln served as host and escort to National President McCune during her visit to the Gulf Coast. Ladies Auxiliary VFW members of District One, who includes Hancock, Harrison, and Jackson Counties, hosted a reception in honor of McCune at the President Broadwater Beach Hotel on April 1.

The Ladies Auxiliary and VFW Post, 2539, Gulfport honored McCune at a dinner on April 2 where Johnnie Richard, National Council Member of the VFW, who represents Mississippi and Louisiana, presented McCune a proclamation from Governor Haley Barber proclaiming April 2 as Evelyn McCune

Day in honor of the Ladies Auxiliary VFW.

McCune toured the Gulf coast, including the Vietnam Memorial in Ocean Springs. Mr. Rodney Wilkinson, Purple Heart recipient of the Vietnam War, explained to the group about the memorial and various exhibits located at the memorial. McCune also visited the Seafood and Marine Museum in Biloxi where she learned about Mississippi's seafood industry.

Under McCune's leadership, the Ladies Auxiliary VFW continues to serve veterans and those serving on the front line in the War against Terrorism as well as helping the families left at home with their special needs. The Ladies Auxiliary foreign oil is what a comprehensive, energy policy will help do. It will save existing jobs and create new ones, and it will bolster our national security.

VFW is known for its assistance to veterans, assisting their communities, and providing opportunities for students. This is the 25th anniversary year of the Young American Creative Patriotic Art Contest, which offers three national scholarships.

If we fail to act, America's economic recovery could be slowed, stalled, or it may even plummet again. If fuel prices remain high for a prolonged period, people will stop traveling and spending money.

Business will curtail their activity, and jobs will be lost. Our generally low 5.7 percent unemployment could shoot back up to 6.3 percent, where it was last June, or higher. Our recovery has come too far to stop now.

The Senate should reach beyond election-year politics to pass a comprehensive national energy policy that protects American jobs, and insulates America's security from unstable, undependable and downright unfriendly nations.

Speaking of jobs, Mississippi's unemployment rate is down to 5.6 percent, significantly lower than this time last year when 6.4 percent of Mississippians were jobless.

Of course, some of these jobs are cyclical, but it should be noted that one of the areas where our state has increased jobs is in good-paying manufacturing jobs.

Federal and state transportation funding is synonymous with economic activity. There are few instances where there can be one without the other. When seeking new plant locations, often the first thing manufacturers want to know about is the area's transportation network. So, for states like Mississippi which are trying to focus on higher-skilled, manufacturing jobs like Nissan or Northrop Grumman, transportation bills are very important.

Last week I reached out to Mississippi legislators, urging them to make sure the state's transportation needs are fully met. This week I'm urging my fellow Senators and President Bush to support the highway bill, pending in Congress.

Some in Congress and the Administration say the highway bill is too expensive. I disagree. Congress shouldn't spend indiscriminately, then suddenly decide to skimp on transportation, one of our most basic duties. I voted against the Administration's budget proposal because it doesn't boost transportation. Apart from transportation, defense, our justice system and other original federal responsibilities, there are plenty of places in the federal budget to tighten, and we need to focus spending cuts outside the very important national security and economic security areas.

The House and Senate have each passed their versions of a six-year transportation bill - both in the $300 billion range. The bills will soon be melded into one package and sent to the President. The President's advisors have recommended a veto. I hope the President will reconsider.

Mississippi's continued economic development and job creation are riding heavily on transportation projects this bill will fund.

Congress should quickly complete an energy bill and a transportation bill. It's the best way to ensure that this refreshing job growth nationally as well as in Mississippi continues. Congress and the President have a duty to help keep this recovery going and to keep jobs coming.

Port -- Linea Peninsular

meeting the board voted to sell Linea land at Port Bienville to make such an expansion possible.

Linea will expand their operation to include the distribution of fruits and vegetables, in particular, lemons, limes, squash, and cucumbers. At present the five ships make about four round trip voyages each week to the Yucatan Peninsula town of Progreso with containers of raw textiles and apparel. The expansion will feature a new $750,000 refrigerated warehouse facility on three to four acres of land located adjacent to Linea's present location at the port.

Commissioners first proposed that Linea be given a long lease for the land at a rate of a dollar a year, but marketing manager Jerry Hemphill said that Humphreys was clear on his proposal; he was interested in building on purchased property only.

Port and Harbor director Hal Walters said that the economic development committee had designated some property at the port for sales but preferred a lease agreement. Commissioners also questioned whether it could possibly be more profitable for Linea to lease the land. Commissioner Robert Kane said he was concerned with what would happen to the land and business when Humphreys retired.

Commissioner president David McDonald told the board that when Linea came to Port Bienville there was nothing more than a tin building standing at the site. The company helped make the port the success that it is today, McDonald said, and brought the port to life.

The Port and Harbor Commission is always interested in prospective jobs, said Hemphill, and we hope that this operation will bring jobs at the warehouse, for the construction and in added trucking operations. The project is right in line with the Commission's goal of economic stimulus, he said.

"Very often we meet with a company who is interested in locating in the area but who are unwilling to make a substantial investment of their own," said Hemphill. "Linea is prepared to make that investment and that is the way we prefer to do business."

In other business:

• Teri Wyly reported that she had submitted the Commission's comments to the Corps of Engineers concerning the recently drafted Coastal Environmental Impact Statement on development along the coast. The CEIS was drafted by the Mobile District. Wyly said that Port Bienville Industrial Park has been removed from the constraints of the statement and placed under the auspices of the Corps' Vicksburg District. The commission has requested, among other things that the Corps issue restrictions based on a low growth scenario, rather than the original high growth scenario, which would severely restrict growth in the area, they say. Commissioner Jody Compretta said Wyly's services were needed to allow the Commission to take a defensive posture to protect themselves against the proposed regulations. Walters said the regulations had the potential to strangle development along the coast.

• David Smallman, of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Alliance For Economic Development representing a United Kingdom company Aqua Barrier, appeared at the Commission meeting to put the finishing touches on an agreement to use property at Stennis International Airport for a week long demonstration of a flood control product manufactured by the company. The demonstration will be held in conjunction with the Flood Plain Managers Conference in Biloxi. The company and its U.S. affiliates will lease the property behind Hanger A for six months.

Zoning -- Rothwell

had gone through all the proper channels, filled out all the necessary paperwork, and provided all the needed proof they needed to insure that they would qualify for a grandfather clause that would allow them to move their new home onto their property in the BaySide neighborhood, to replace the old trailer now on the site.

But on Thursday, the three commissioners present at the Hancock Planning and Zoning Commission meeting told the Rothwells that they would not be allowed to bring in a new trailer due to changes in the zoning ordinance prohibiting replacement of trailers in that area.

The Rothwells said they were under the impression that they had a permit to do just that, they say, that was issued by the building permit office in April of 2003, after they brought in aerial photos and a host of other paperwork they were told they would need to prove the existence of a trailer prior to 1997. If they could do that, they say they were told, they would qualify for a grandfather clause allowing them to upgrade the trailer. They say they checked with the permit office first to make sure that the property they purchased would allow the mobile home.

Building official Mickey Lagasse said that what the Rothwells actually had was a permit to transfer power for an existing mobile home, not for a replacement mobile home. Lagasse took over as building official in May of 2003. He said the Rothwells had a host of paperwork, but nothing actually in writing that stated the trailer could be replaced. However, Lagasse said, had they acted promptly, they probably would have been allowed to replace the trailer at that time.

That is where the problem comes in. Right after the final sale on the property went through Frederick Rothwell, a Korean War veteran, became very ill, requiring months of hospitalization and rehabilitation. When he finally got back on his feet the couple put the down payment on their new home. A few days later they got a call from the dealer telling them there was a problem. They paid their $105 to appeal their case before the planning commission and were denied the request for a special exception. Final say on zoning matters is always with the Planning Commission said Commissioner Lynn Bell, not the zoning official.

The Rothwells are preparing an appeal to the Board of Supervisors on the matter, their next course of action.

They don't know how much that will cost, if anything, they say. Meanwhile, they will remain in the old trailer.

"We just wanted to do something to improve the neighborhood," said Frederick. "We got the best home that we qualified for."

OLA comes from behind for 3-1 win; Bay falls 1-0 in 10 innings; SSC's Kulikowski fans 18 batters

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Our Lady Academy Crescents and the Bay High Lady Tigers both hit the diamond on Thursday, April 15th, for the first game of a best-of-three series in the second round of the state fast-pitch softball playoffs. The Crescents came from behind to win the first game of the series with Columbia High School 3-1. The Lady Tigers and the Lawrence County Lady Cougars battled into extra innings before the Lady Cougars came away with the 1-0 victory.

Sara Hough put the Lady Wildcats of Columbia on the scoreboard first against OLA with a single in the top of the second inning. Hough stole second and third base before touching home plate on a fielder's choice.

OLA took the lead for good in the fourth inning when Lakesia Duckworth hit a two-out 2-run single that gave OLA the advantage 2-1.

The Lady Wildcats got a runner on base in the top of the fifth inning but Jordan Fisher caught a line drive ball and threw over to first base for the double-play on the next at-bat for Columbia.

In the sixth inning, Columbia put Hough back on base with a single. She stole second and was thrown out at third base to end the inning.

OLA got their final run in the bottom of the sixth inning when Adrian Gannon reached first base on a throwing error. Ramey Barnes came in to pinch-run for Gannon and scored later in the inning to make the final margin of 3-1.

Rachel Cuevas pitched a complete game for the Crescents and struck out 8 batters. OLA head coach Courtney Shivers stated, "This was a good win for us because now we only have to win one on the road. The pitching by Rachel Cuevas was very strong tonight but our defense in the field really won the game for us. We had some very consistent and stifling defensive plays in the field. Our defense has kept us in these last few games that we have played."

Duckworth and Fisher each had two hits. Other hits in the game came from Ashley Mayley, Erin Casey and Adrian Gannon.

OLA (12-11) traveled to Columbia (11-9) on Saturday, April 17th for a possible doubleheader with the Lady Wildcats. OLA had to win one more game in the series to advance to the South State championship series with the winner of the North Pike/West Lauderdale series. If OLA advanced, it will be the first time in school history that the Crescent softball team has played for the South State title.

Game details will be available in Thursday's edition.

The Crescents advanced to the second round of the playoffs with a decisive 5-1 win in the rubber game of their best-of-three series with defending Class 3A state champion Newton County on Tuesday, April 13th.

Rachel Cuevas got the win on the mound for the Crescents and went 3-for-3 in the batter's box. Megan Besancon knocked in 2 runs and went 2-for-3 at the plate for OLA.

The Lady Tigers (12-9) of Bay High battled the #5-ranked Lady Cougars of Lawrence County for 10 innings before being nipped 1-0.

Katie Barrett went the distance on the mound for Bay High striking out 8 batters and allowing only one hit in 10 innings.

Tamara Reed had an outstanding game in the field for the Lady Tigers as she either completed the out or assisted with the out on 10 different occasions. The only hit for the Lady Cougars came in the third inning when the leadoff batter hit a blooper to centerfield that dropped for a single. The only other baserunner for Lawrence County in regulation was a batter who was hit by a pitch. In both instances of Lady Cougar baserunners, Barrett retired the side.

Tamara Reed was the lone Lady Tiger to reach base. She drew a walk to leadoff the bottom of the fourth inning; however, the side was retired before she could complete a trip around the bases.

When the game entered extra innings, international tie-breaker rules were implemented. This allowed for each team to begin their side of the inning with a runner on second base.

In the top of the eighth inning, the runner for the Lady Cougars was thrown out at home by Reed to end the scoring threat. The lead runner in the top of the ninth inning was also taken out of the equation on a fielder's choice.

In the top of the 10th inning, the lead runner for the Lady Cougars stole third base and scored on a sacrifice flyball for the winning margin.

In extra innings, the Lady Tigers went three-up three-down in all three frames.

Bay High head coach Debbie Triplett stated, "We did not hit the ball into the field like we have in the past. It was a true pitcher's duel. We got a strong performance from Katie Barrett, but our bats did not provide the offense behind her. Defensively, we played a very good game with a number of players making some great stops. Tamara Reed seemed to be making several plays each inning. We are a very young team with only one senior starting."

The Lady Tigers advanced to the second round with a sweep of Northeast Jones on the road on Saturday, April 10th. The Lady Tigers traveled to Lawrence County on Saturday, April 17th in a must-win situation. The Lady Tigers had to win both games on the road to advance to the South State championship series against the winner of the East Central/Northeast Lauderdale series. Game details will appear in Thursday's edition.

On Friday, April 16th, the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws (11-16, 5-7) entertained division rival Vancleave in the final home game of the season for SSC. The Rocks upset the playoff-bound Bulldogs 5-2 largely behind the arm of senior pitcher Tim Kulikowski.

Kulikowski threw a complete game two-hitter against the Bulldogs. He threw 146 pitches on the night and recorded 18 strikeouts against 7 walks. The tally of K's is the highest single-game total in recent history. Official verification of the mark in reference to a school record will take place soon.

Vancleave opened the game with a walk by Walter Pennington. The Bulldog catcher, Ronnie Wheat, smashed a two-run 365-foot dinger in the second at-bat that gave Vancleave a 2-0 lead after one inning. The Rocks answered with three runs in the bottom of the second inning to take the lead for good.

SSC got an insurance run in the bottom of the fourth inning when Lee Klein reached on a fielder's choice. Courtesy runner Zack Elkins came in to run and advanced to second base. Dylan Drake hit a single to rightfield that brought Elkins in to score and make the Rock margin 4-2.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, Lance Cuevas reached on an error by the second baseman. He scored when Lee Klein smashed a ball to deep leftfield for an RBI single to make the final score of 5-2. Vancleave made a hard charge at the lead in the top of the seventh inning. Kulikowski fanned the first batter. He walked the second batter and Ronnie Wheat hit a double to centerfield to put runners on second and third with one out.

Kulikowski walked Ty Summerlin to load the bases.

However, Kulikowski battled back and fanned the next two Bulldog batters to win the game. SSC head coach Mark Logan stated, "Timmy Kulikowski battled hard all night. He was on target and this was a big win over a playoff team. While the seniors are disappointed that they will not enter the playoffs, we had a good experience this year. The younger players on the team have been able to learn from them and contribute during the season which will be very valuable next year. Our wins and losses are not exactly where we would like them to be; however, it has been a very successful season in many regards. There has not been one player who has not gotten better this season."

Logan continued, "I cannot say enough about our five seniors on this team. Tim Kulikowski has been a battler for us all season long and has provided solid leadership for the younger players. Spencer Ziegler has been a solid player and leader for this squad. Zack Sedgbeer and Philman Ladner are both pitchers who have seen some action this season but have done everything we have asked of them. Bob Bass has done a tremendous amount for this squad that is not always seen. As a group, I have not been around a better group of players. It has been a positive year for us in many ways."

Dylan Drake and Lee Klein led the Rocks at the plate with two hits each. Other Rocks with hits were Kulikowski, Ziegler and Stephen Keel.

In other diamond action earlier in the week, the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws defeated Gautier 5-3 in Division 8 Class 4A action on Tuesday, April 13th. Tyler Henry got the win on the mound as he struck out 8 Gators at the plate. Henry also collected two RBIs in the game. Other Rocks who had hits in the game were Chase Kleinpeter with a single and double and an RBI. Lee Klein smacked a double that bounced off the outfield wall. Klein also was credited with an RBI. Lance Cuevas, Tim Kulikowski, and Brett Ladner all recorded hits at the plate.

Also, on Tuesday evening the Bay High Tigers dropped a division game to the D'Iberville Warriors 9-6 on the road. Robbie Pitre and Ladner each had two hits in the game for Bay High. The loss dropped the Tigers to 11-12 overall and 5-6 in the division. The Tigers still maintain control of the fourth and final playoff spot from Division 8 Class 4A.

DMR to distribute new 'Mississippi Gulf Coast Fishing Guide' at Country Cajun Crawfish Festival Exhibit

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources' Seafood Marketing and Saltwater Recreational Fishing programs will be exhibiting at this year's 12th annual Country Cajun Crawfish Festival which wraps up today at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum to promote Mississippi seafood and Mississippi recreational saltwater fishing.

Visitors to DMR's booth during the three-day event will receive copies of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Fishing Guide, which includes a listing of available charter boats, fishing location maps, various reefs and artificial reef coordinates, marinas, piers, and boat launch locations; Mississippi Seafood Business Directory; Mississippi Seafood Recipe Book, Get Hooked on Mississippi Seafood; a five-card pack of recipe cards, which features recipes submitted from Mississippi Gulf Coast restaurants and seafood businesses. Also available will be the latest fishing regulations, fish rulers to measure your catch and other saltwater fishing promotional items.

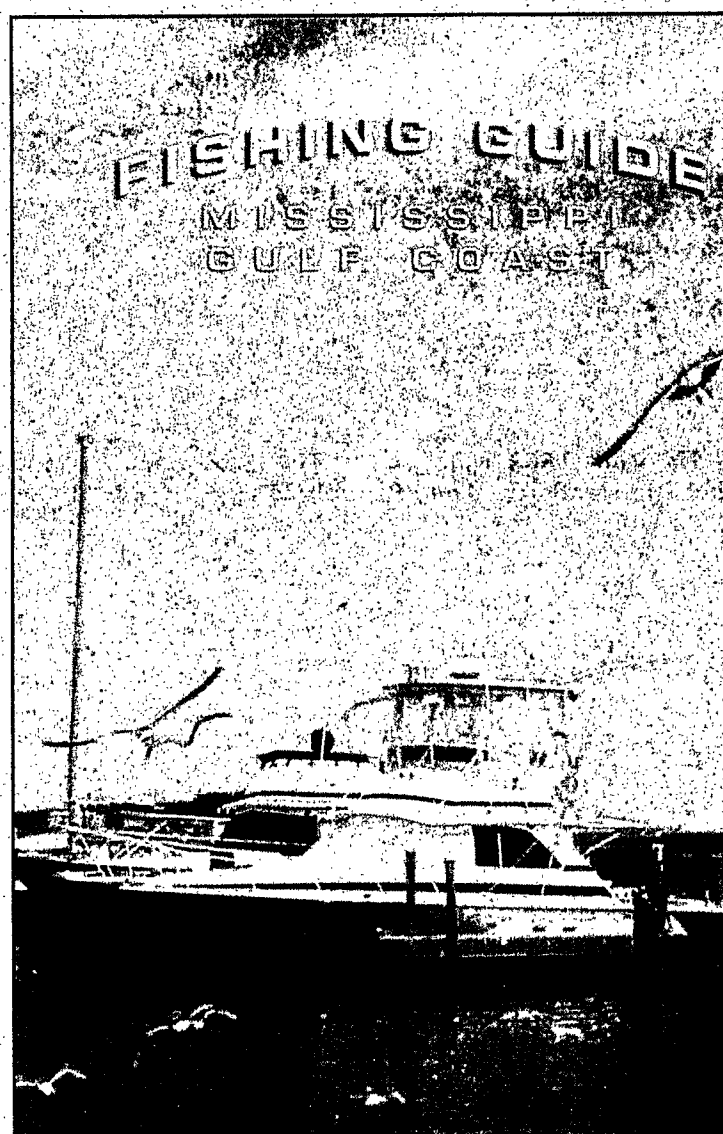

Mississippi State University's Coastal Research and Extension Center and the Sensory Science Center will coexhibit with the DMR and provide samples of raw oysters, and other value-added seafood products in conjunction with a taste study being conducted.

The Seafood Marketing Program and Saltwater Recreational Fishing Program are a result of the State Legislature authorizing the DMR, in Fiscal Year 1999, to develop programs to enhance the marketing of the state's recreational and commercial marine resources, under Section 49-15-307 of the Mississippi Code.

"The Mississippi Gulf Coast is a fisherman's paradise for the sport fisherman seeking excitement and variety of species," said Irvin Jackson, DMR Seafood Marketing Program and Saltwater Recreational Fishing Program coordinator. "For charter boat action, spear fishing, saltwater fly fishing, pier fishing, surf fishing, or fishing one of our many artificial reef sites, fishing is always in season here."

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the State by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes. Visit the DMR online at www.dmr.state.ms.us or <http://www.dmr.state.ms.us>

Free soils workshop for gardeners this Thursday

You are invited to attend "Getting Down and Dirty - A homeowners' guide to soils - Workshop."

Registration 12:30
Thursday April 22, 2004
Hancock County Library, Kiln

Pre-Registration Required
Costs: No cost to participants, fees paid by Hancock County Soil & Water Conservation District.

An elective course for 3 credit hours approved by Mississippi Real Estate Commission.

A certificate of completion will be presented at the end of course to each participant.

Whether you build a castle or a barn, you need to understand the type of soils you are dealing with. If you are not familiar with the soils, you can create, not only a short term problem for yourself, but a lingering and costly problem that may or may not be able to be solved.

That is why this project will not only serve to educate the public on the vital importance of why they need to know the soils of Hancock County, but what the effect of those soils will have on their future. When purchasing a piece of property anywhere in the world, you should know what the land will support, what it will do during severe weather or if you will be able to even use this land after a disaster.

Therefore, the importance of this project is multi-purpose. It will reach everyone that has a concern on just why they can't build a brick house on unstable soil, what will happen if they do and let them have the information to make the right decisions concerning their property, no matter who they are.

Mississippi air quality in compliance with EPA mandated standards

BY JOHN HEILPRIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON - The Environmental Protection agency told officials in 31 states Thursday they must develop new "pollution controls because the air in some of their counties, home to more than 150 million people, does not meet air quality standards.

The EPA, acting under court order, identified all or part of 474 counties. The localities, mostly in the eastern third of the country and in California, do not meet the federal health standard for smog-causing ozone. Officials have three years to develop plans to come into compliance.

The new standards "are strong medicine" and "will require more actions on your part to achieve cleaner, healthier air," EPA Administrator Mike Leavitt said he told governors of the states.

Ground-level ozone, a precursor to smog, has been found to be a serious health problem, causing respiratory illnesses. It can be especially damaging to the elderly, children and people with asthma, according to health advocates.

The EPA said that the regions in noncompliance may have to impose new controls on industrial plants, restrict transportation and require tougher vehicle inspection programs to clean up their air. Some counties also may have to require the use of special, cleaner-burning gasoline.

The EPA already has said it will take actions to reduce pollution from power plants and announced Thursday, in a companion regulation, new requirements aimed at curtailing air pollution over parks.

"This isn't about the air getting dirtier. The air is getting cleaner," said Leavitt. "These new rules are about our new understanding of health threats, about our standards getting tougher and our national resolve to meet them."

The county designation has been long awaited, ever since the EPA in 1997 issued tougher health standards for ground-level ozone and fine soot because of concern that the requirements were not adequately protecting the elderly, children and people with respiratory illnesses.

Deadlines for meeting the air quality standards range from 2007 for those with the least serious problem to as long as 2021 for areas with the dirtiest air.

The EPA said the Los Angeles basin had the worst smog problem, the only region to be placed in "severe" pollution category. Three other regions of California - Riverside County, San Joaquin Valley, Sacramento - were designated as having "serious" pollution, and have until 2013 to meet the standards.

The other counties have from "marginal" to "moderate" dirty air and will have three to six years to come into compliance.

Areas that continue to violate the standard could face sanctions including a loss of federal highway funds.

A designation of noncompliance also has economic impact on areas because often businesses are reluctant to locate there, fearing future pollution controls.

The counties in nonattainment included most of California, a ring of states around the Great Lakes, and a concentration of Northeast states from the Washington, D.C. area to Boston. Also failing the federal test are parts of eastern Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina and the Dallas, Houston and San Antonio areas in Texas.

Leavitt said despite the widespread notifications of noncompliance "many states received good news."

He said 2,668 counties met the standards. And 19 states had all counties in compliance: Alaska, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming.

The 1997 regulations, which were delayed for four years because of a lengthy court challenge that eventually went to the Supreme Court, allow less ozone in the air, from 120 parts per billion down to 85 parts per billion. They also require air sampling over an eight-hour period instead of only one hour, making compliance tougher.

The Supreme Court upheld the standards in February 2001. Environmental and public health groups such as the American Lung Association and Environmental Defense sued to force government into action.

Leavitt was under a court-ordered deadline Thursday to release the list of non-complying counties and the categories they fall in, which determine the corrective measures and time frames to accomplish cleanups.

Mississippi Gulf Coast Alliance names new officers

Sue Wright, executive director of the Greater George County Economic Development Foundation and Chamber of Commerce, is the Mississippi Gulf Coast Alliance for Economic Development's new president for 2004. She succeeds George Freeland, executive director of the Jackson County Economic Development Foundation.

Wright has been in her current position since 2000, when she became the first full-time paid executive director in the George County agency's 23-year history. Other Alliance officers for 2004 include Hal Walters, executive director of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, as vice-president, and Larry Barnett of Mississippi Power, secretary/treasurer.

The Mississippi Gulf Coast Alliance was formed in 2001 by the economic development agencies of Mississippi's six coastal counties to cooperatively market and promote the resources of the entire area. The organization also works to address issues common to coastal Mississippi and to enhance economic development and strategic planning by combining the region's resources.

Something for everyone is @ your library

National Library Week is April 18-24

It's National Library Week, a time to rediscover all that our nation's libraries and librarians have to offer and why there's something for everyone @ your library.

"Libraries provide a world of opportunity for all people, regardless of your age, income or background," says Prima Plache, Hancock County Library System Director. "Whether you're checking out the latest bestseller, researching your college term paper, getting the latest health information or using the Internet, the library has the resources and staff to help you find what you are looking for."

This year, the Hancock County Library System joins the American Library Association and libraries across the country in encouraging our users to learn more about both new and traditional resources available.

National Library Week 2004 marks the fourth year of The Campaign for America's Libraries. The campaign intends to increase awareness about the vibrancy and real value of today's libraries. It is designed to showcase public, school, academic and special libraries nationwide.

"Today's libraries are modern community centers for information, education and entertainment where the whole community comes together," said Prima Plache, Hancock County Library System Director. "From preschool story hour to homework help, from academic research to special collections, libraries are as vibrant as ever."

"Libraries are truly unique. In person and online, where else can you have access to nearly everything in print and on the Web and have the personal assistance of a librarian to help find what you are looking for?"

Plache adds that librarians are experts in navigating through the clutter of information that's out there. "Librarians are really the ultimate search engine @ your library. If you need to find something, just ask."

In celebration of National Library Week, the Hancock County Library System will host the following events:

- Coffee Hour @ Your Library - Coffee and orange juice will be available at all branches of the library system - Bay St. Louis-Hancock County, Kiln Public Library, Pearlinton Public Library and Waveland Public Library from 9 to 11. Orange juice and coffee will be available until 11:00 a.m.

- National Library Week will be the theme at the children's story hours on Tuesday, April 10, at 10:30 a.m. at the Waveland Public Library; Wednesday, April 21, at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library; and on Thursday, April 22, at 10:30 a.m. at the Kiln Public Library.

- Paige Cothren, football star and author, will be the featured speaker at the second Authors & Characters program on Tuesday, April 20, at 12:00 noon in the Seal Meeting Room of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library. Lunch is available for $5 cash, and advance reservations are required for lunch. To make reservations, call Jamie Elston at 467-5282.

"The library has been, and will continue to be, a one-stop shop for all your information needs," said Prima Plache, library system director. "Whether you're checking out the latest bestseller, or attending a workshop, the library has the resources and staff to assist you in finding the information you need."

For more information, including library hours, visit or call any of the branches of the Hancock County Library System: Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, 467-5282; Kiln Public Library, 255-1724; Pearlinton Public Library, 533-0755; or Waveland Public Library, 467-9240, or see the library's Web site at www.hancock.lib.ms.us.

Scafidi photos on display at Train Depot April 19-23

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The Hancock County Historical Society will present the Anthony J. "Tony" Scafidi Photo Collection at the Bay St. Louis Historic Depot, April 19-23, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Scafidi, of Bay St. Louis, began his photo career as a hobby before becoming a professional in the late 1940s and 50s.

Several months ago, the Historical Society acquired a Samsonite suitcase of Scafidi negatives in excellent condition, according to Charles Gray, executive director.

Gray said that Scafidi died in 1969. His works were stored away in attics and sheds eluding the society's most valiant efforts to find them.

Tony Scafidi worked as a full time Standard Oil agent for all of Hancock County most of his life; however, photography was his hobby. He enjoyed taking pictures of friends and family. Before long he was taking professional pictures of weddings, school activities and community activities.

"Now through the generosity of Scafidi's brother, Sam, and his wife, Barbara Scafidi, of Bay St. Louis, his (Tony Scafidi's) work will be displayed," Gray reported.

Since acquiring the negatives, volunteers have worked many hours, first cleaning the negatives then scanning them and then printing them.

The pictures, 350-400 of them, will be on display at the Depot.

As an added special during the exhibit, Paul La Violette, Historical Society board member, will have a Power Point showing of over 100 photos on a large screen.

Gray said the Historical Society will take orders for copies of the photos to anyone interested at $10 each for 8x10s.

Already, Gray reports a family has secured copies of their wedding photos from the collection, as their originals were lost during Hurricane Camille.

There are photos from school functions at Bay High, St. Stanislaus, St. Joseph's Academy, St. Rose de Lima and Valeneia C. Jones.

There are also portraits, children, groups, outdoor scenes, civic meeting, businesses, etc.

Volunteers from the Hancock County Retired Senior Volunteer Program, (RSVP) will assist society members during the five-day display.

Gray said, "During the week I will have computers, copy machines, etc. on hand to copy old photos from the general public. Our goal is to collect copies of as many photos of the area as possible. We already have thousands in our files, but know there are many more still to be collected."

"History is important for future generations, and this special photo display of Mr. Scafidi's will be on hand for generations to come," Gray added.

"Everyone is invited and many of the Scafidi photos need identification. Some the negatives had notations such as 'Ladner family,' and you know there are many Ladner families who live in our county," Gray commented.

The Hancock County Historical Society expresses special appreciation to the city of Bay St. Louis for the use of the Historic Depot to present the display of this unique community photo collection, Gray emphasized.

Is life fair to you?

Willie Mays had a big hug and kiss for his Godson, Barry Bonds, after he slammed home run number 660; a three-run, 442-foot blast over the right field bleachers of SBC Park into McCovey Cove (San Francisco Bay).

The "Say-hey" kid could not have been happier, even though Barry had tied him for fourth on the all-time home run list. Never in his storied career nor thereafter has Willie cried "Foul!" about the unfairness of his lot.

So what unfairness am I talking about? The Polo Grounds, the monstrous park where Willie Mays played the first seven years of his career, measured an incredible 481 feet to dead center, and 465 in the power alleys.

Only God knows how many home runs that cavernous stadium turned into long-distance outs. Perhaps well over 100? When Willie was hot, he would have streaks of driving a dozen or more of such outs in a handful of days.

The only real advantage of the spacious outfield was Willie's ability to drive balls deep into the pockets, then fly around the bases, producing as many as an unheard-of 20 or more triples in a single year.

Also, the outsize range of outfield set the stage backdrop for the Willie Mays signature event: his heart-stopping run-down and catch of a 461-foot smash by the Cleveland Indians' Vic Wertz in the 1954

World Series.

Oddly, Willie says that he made several catches much more difficult than that one.

Adding insult to injury, the New York Giants forsook the Polo Grounds to become the San Francisco Giants in 1958. With its stiff winds blowing in from the Bay, Candlestick Park robbed Mays of many more home runs, maybe 100 or more according to hammerin' Hank Aaron.

Now you do the math. Allowing for 200 to 250 homes runs lost to the vast expanses of the Polo Grounds and to the driving winds of Candlestick Park, Willie's 660 career home runs quickly become 860, maybe 900 or more.

It is most curious how little attention is paid to the blundering baseball park designers who penalized players like Willie Mays with a soul-withering 481 feet to dead center and 465 feet to the power alleys of the Polo Grounds.

Joe DiMaggio had a similar problem with the 460-foot power alley of Yankee Stadium which came to be known as Death Valley. Baseball buffs salivate, wondering what the Yankee Clipper would have done in Boston.

Equally, they get a real buzz out of speculating what Ted

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Williams would have done with that short right field porch in Yankee Stadium. That feature alone might have gifted him with another 150 or so home runs.

Consider, too, that Teddy Ballgame lost another 150 home runs to several years in the military. Add those lost homers to his career 521 home runs, and, to say the least, you have a total which falls into interesting territory.

It goes further, when we consider that the very powerful Willie Stargell spent most of his career swinging at the very distant outfield fences of Forbes Field in Pittsburgh. Again, he must have lost 100-plus home runs.

Carry it another step to include Josh Gibson, the king-size slugger of the Negro Leagues who spent most of his career playing half of his games in old Griffith Stadium in Washington, D.C., where the left field fence was a distant 405 feet from home plate. He still managed about 80 homers a year.

Josh was so powerful that he drove one ball completely out of Yankee Stadium at a point in left-center 580 feet from the plate and 100 feet above the ground. It is estimated that, had the ball not struck a steel obstruction outside the stadium, it would have traveled about 700 feet.

Mind you, we are not disparaging the feats of Barry Bonds, for what he has done in the past three years is nothing short of mind-boggling in terms of baseball. Never before has anyone, including Babe Ruth, had inordinate slugging percentages over 800 and on-base percentages well above 700.

What we are affirming is that some people, even like the great Willie Mays, are short-changed by the vagaries of nature or by myopic human beings who have made themselves odds-makers by building weird parks.

"Life isn't fair!" is a complaint which we hear far more often than we would like. "Why me?" is a variation on the same theme. "Why not me?" is the believer's strong response to the self-pitying, the skeptic and cynic.

King David had the same problem in Psalm 73 when he looked enviously at the easy plight of the wicked, while the pathway of the righteous seems pockmarked with obstacles, minefields, disappointments and failures.

If you become convinced that life is unfair to you for whatever people and circumstances factor into your plans, schedules and activities, just accept it, live with it and prosper with it through the grace of God.

Viewing the Passion of the Christ, we have all come to know better that, because of us, life was most unfair of all to the King of the universe himself.

Scripture Says...

By Ed Young

The Word of God

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."
(Psalm 119:105)

Reading the Word of God will make you wise and able to go through this life with direction and purpose. Here are some truths worth noting. The Word of God says: "Enter not into the path of the wicked and go not in the way of evil men. Avoid it, pass not by it, turn from it, and pass away. For they sleep not, except they have done mischief, and their sleep is taken away, unless they cause some to fall. For they eat the bread of wickedness, and drink the wine of violence."

But the path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

(Proverbs 4:14-18)

The Bible has an abundance of wonderful life-giving instructions. Trouble is, most of us do not read the Word of God, the Bible. Why don't we? Because we confess we don't understand what we've just read. When reading the scriptures, you will find that the meaning will come forth as you continue to read it.

If your desire is to know more about your Heavenly Father, start reading in the Gospel of St. John; in that book the Lord Jesus reveals his mission and God's intention for mankind.

The Bible is the greatest book ever written, you will grow spiritually by reading it, for in it you will find eternal life.

The "Word" for the Week
Your weapons of warfare

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 66782

We all have different kinds of struggles. What we may not realize is that we fuel those struggles ourselves. How so?

By the way we use our minds, our tongues, our hands and our feet. These parts of our bodies and personalities can be used in different ways. They can be used for good. Or they can be used for evil.

Listen to how the Bible puts it: "Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body that you should obey its lusts, and do not go on presenting the members of your body to sin as instruments of unrighteousness; but present yourselves to God as those alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness to God" (Romans 6:12-13).

You see, you can use your mind as an instrument for good or evil. Your hands can be an instrument for good or evil. You can use your mind for evil purposes by planning a murder, a rape or a robbery. You can use your hands for evil by carrying out the robbery, rape, or murder.

But you should also use your mind for good. You should study the Bible. You should use your hands for good by putting the example of Jesus Christ into practice. But suppose you discover that as much as you try to use your mind and your hands for good, you just can't.

It seems as though you really cannot hold yourself back from the bad habits in which you are ensnared. You really are a slave to sin (Romans 6:20). Jesus Christ must break the power of reigning sin. He must set you free. Once Jesus Christ does exactly that, you really can begin to use your mind and your hands for good.

Football star and author to speak at Bay library

THE SEA COAST ECHO

What does a man do who has made All Big 8, All State, All South and All American as a high school football fullback? Or all SEC, All South, and All American as a fullback at Ole Miss?

Well, if you're Paige Cothren, you write books about those glory days in words that make determination and pain mixed with a generous dose of humor leap off the pages with the speed of a streaking quarterback.

The former star athlete is the featured speaker for the second Authors & Characters series in the Seal Room of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library at 12:00 noon on Tuesday, April 20th. The Authors & Characters @ Your Library series features Southern authors and characters - all with interesting tales to tell.

Cothren, a Natchez native, received the Jacobs Blocking Trophy as the best blocker in the SEC at Ole Miss in 1955 and led the SEC in scoring in 1955 (the only time one person has done both). He led the SEC and the nation in field goals kicked and in kick scoring in both 1955 and 1956. He played in the Sugar Bowl, the Cotton Bowl, the College All-Star game, the North-South All-Star game, and the Hula Bowl. He played for the Los Angeles Rams and the Philadelphia Eagles, and led the National Football League in field goals kicked and was second in scoring in 1958.

Cothren earned a bachelor's degree in business administration, taught college courses, was a college dean of students, founded a counseling center where 1,500 people were counseled each year. He was also managing director of a resort and golf club, and owned three supermarkets.

He has written 23 books and large booklets, including Let None Deal Treacherously; Seeking To Know Her; Walking Carefully Around the Dead; An Academy Called Pain; So Great the Pretender; The Echo of Silence and others.

Lunch will be available for those wishing to eat. The cost is $5 cash, and advance reservations must be made for lunch. To reserve your lunch or obtain more information, call Jamie Elston at 467-5282 by Friday, April 16.

All students are allowed to select the book of their choice, and there is no charge to the student. GE Plastics and Hancock School District employees on hand for the donation included: (Front L to R): Lead Teacher, Maria Lott; Principal, Jan White; Site General Manager, Tracy Scott; Superintendent, David Kopf; Assistant Principal, Alan Dedeaux; Human Resources Specialist, Toni Larroux (GE) (Back L to R): Human Resources Administrator, Rachel Davis (GE); District Parent Coordinator, Jeanne Brooks; Finance Manager, Dave Mobley (GE); Human Resources Manager, Ashley Neighbors (GE); Environmental Specialist, Tanla Richard (GE); and Safety Leader, Kenny Kling (GE).

Hancock libraries to recognize library workers

Tuesday, April 20 is National Library Workers Day

The Hancock County Library System (HCLS) will host the first annual "National Library Workers Day" Tuesday, April 20, as part of the National Library Week celebration. The event is held in conjunction with the American Library Association-Allegheny Professional Association's (ALA-APA). National Library Workers Day is a time to honor the contributions of all library workers, including librarians, support staff and others who make library services possible.

Library workers are responsible for a wide variety of services that library customers come to expect from their libraries. They are in charge of more than just checking books in and out of the library. Library workers catalog and shelve materials; handle requests and send them to other libraries; answer phone calls and emails; organize programs and events; administer computer networks; select and obtain books, CDs, videos and databases; and much more.

"The Hancock County Library System works because we do," says Prima Plaque, HCLS Director. "We're the people opening the doors, fixing the printers, and selecting materials that serve this community the best. Not only do we make sure the library runs smoothly, we also protect user privacy, fight against censorship and ensure that all people have access to the information resources they need when they need it."

"Library Workers Day is also a great time to learn about the types of jobs held by library employees, especially if people are interested in a new or second career," said Plaque. "We want people to know that we work @ your library and we love and take pride in what we do."

For more information, including library hours, visit or call any of the branches of the Hancock County Library System: Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, 467-5282; Kiln Public Library, 255-1724; Pearlinton Public Library, 533-0755; or Waveland Public Library, library's Web site at 467-9240, or see the www.hancock.lib.ms.us.

Country Club hosts musical event today

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The New Orleans Opera comes to Diamondhead Country Club today, Sunday, April 18, with baritone Mark Rucker and mezzo-soprano Eugenie Grunewald.

When Mark Rucker sang Renato in Un ballo in maschera with Luciano Pavarotti for the Opera Company of Philadelphia, Opera magazine said of him:

"If a star emerges in this performance his name is Mark Rucker. Here, Rucker sounds like a major addition to the ranks of genuine Verdi Baritones."

As a winner of the second Pavarotti Competition in 1986, Mr. Rucker was seen not only in this production in Philadelphia, but also in the PBS telecast later that season.

Since then he has per-

Dogwood Garden Club sponsors flower show at the Maritime & Seafood Industry Museum

The Dogwood Garden Club Flower show will be held at the Maritime and Seafood Industry Museum, Thursday, April 22, from 1 until 4:30 p.m.

Dogwood Garden Club sponsors flower shows on a regular basis to allow its members to develop their appreciation for the art of flower arranging. Each member will have the opportunity and challenge of interpreting the show's theme with their arrangement. The show is open to the public to allow members to share their work with the community and to stimulate interest in horticulture.

Dogwood Garden Club was established May 29, 1940, by Mrs. J. H. Beeman and continues today with an active membership of thirty-five women. Their purpose is to promote gardening for civic and roadside beautification, encourage junior gardening, and sponsor horticultural projects as well as to provide support for the Biloxi Garden Center. The Organization was instrumental in organizing the original efforts to save the Old Brick House, Biloxi's oldest remaining structure, and in establishing the Biloxi Council of Garden Clubs, which continues to assist the City of Biloxi in that work today.

The Maritime & Seafood Industry Museum is located at 115 First Street, (East Biloxi). Viewing will be from 1 to 4:30 p.m. If you have questions, call 228-435-6320.

Keith David

Checking in with Keith David

By John Crook
 © Zap2it

Character actor Keith David pretty much can write his own ticket these days.

A veteran of theater, film, TV and animation voice work, he's happy to be serving time in "The Big House," ABC's warm and funny Friday-night family sitcom. David plays Clarence, the patriarch of a clan that includes wife Tina (Ametia Walker), son Warren (Faizon Love) and newly arrived nephew Kevin (Kevin Hart).

"We didn't want to be the everyday, formula, run-of-the-mill sitcom," David says. "It's funny, but the show also has a good family feeling in all its dysfunctionality. It has heart."

"Faizon and I did 'The Replacements' together and got along very well, and Ametia and I went to high school together. I didn't have to pretend to like her, which was another nice element to bring to the show."

Not that David can't pretend when the need arises. A graduate of New York's prestigious Juilliard School, he can handle roles ranging from Shakespeare's "Othello" to legendary singer Nat "King" Cole, a dream project David admits he'd like to tackle one day.

Nevertheless, the actor is friendly and affable, even when working with colleagues who lack his training.

"It's not really my place to judge how they are following their own path," he says.

David also shrugs off a near-tragic incident that happened while he was filming "Platoon," when Charlie Sheen was suddenly pitched toward an open helicopter door in mid-flight.

"If I hadn't grabbed him, Charlie would have fallen out of the helicopter," David says. "But it was just a reflex and in hindsight, I realize I also didn't want to live my life with the memory of watching him fall."

Birthdate: June 4, 1956.
Birthplace: Harlem, N.Y.
Honors: Tony Award nomination for "Jelly's Last Jam"; two Emmy nominations.

Just in case: "I didn't have the temperament to wait tables," so David also is a certified speech teacher and a licensed masseuse.

Coming up: "Crash"; "The Chronicles of Riddick."

Movie credits include: "Barbershop"; "The Replacements"; "Requiem for a Dream"; "There's Something About Mary"; "Armageddon."

TV credits: "The Job"; "Aladdin"; "Spawn"; "House of Mouse"; "Garfield"; "The Tiger Woods Story."

Featured 'Iron Chef America' draw foodies from East, West

By John Crook

Maybe they're not literally selling hot dogs and lukewarm beer in Kitchen Stadium, but the cult TV hit "Iron Chef" takes on tints of red, white and blue in "Iron Chef America: Battle of the Masters," an original series of specials airing Friday-Sunday, April 23-25, on Food Network.

These Yankee variations on "Iron Chef" follow the familiar dueling-chef format, albeit on a larger scale, says Alton Brown, Food Network's popular "Good Eats" host who serves as a culinary anchorman for the specials.

"Kitchen Stadium is much bigger, for one thing, and more functional, I think," Brown explains. "What you'll see is true to the form. It's like everything you associate with the name 'Iron Chef,' only turned up several notches."

"My 'role' is based on Dr. Hatori on 'Iron Chef,' but Hatori mainly sat with the judges and chatted, whereas I am working more as an anchorman at my own station, talking with the floor reporter, Kevin Brauch."

"The approach is similar to Monday Night Football, in that there is more play-by-play, more in-depth stuff," Brown adds. "They'll cut me to explain the difference between two ingredients, for example, so there is more actual education going on, too."

Taped in Los Angeles, Friday's episode opens with a behind-the-scenes preview special, followed by a battle between U.S. chef Bobby Flay and Iron Chef French Hiroyuki Sakai.

Saturday's double bill includes an encore of the Flay-Sakai match, followed by Iron Chef Japanese Masa-haru Morimoto facing off against "Molto Mario" host Mario Batali.

An epic about freedom shines in a retelling

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

The first reaction one might have to hearing about a classic being remade is: Why?

Why tamper with a movie such as "Spartacus," Stanley Kubrick's 1960 epic that starred Kirk Douglas and Sir Laurence Olivier, and turn it into a TV movie?

The answer is that some stories are so important, they deserve to be told again. Four-plus decades after the original, USA Network's miniseries, "Spartacus," Sunday and Monday, April 18 and 19, revisits the true story of a slave revolt that shook the Roman Empire.

"The slave rebellion under Spartacus was one of the biggest events in history," says Goran Visnjic ("ER"), who plays the title character. "The slave rebellion was so special in so many different ways. How big it was, how long they could defy the Roman army, and the fact that the Romans never took any enemies. It was a major event in human history. Today, we look at it completely differently. For slaves to do that, it was extraordinary."

The first century before Christ was an extraordinary time, as Rome was wallowing in its excesses of unchecked aggression and acquisition. Pillaging soldiers invaded towns and took what they wanted, which was often people, and forced them into slavery.

Spartacus was a Thracian who as a boy watched as his father was crucified. Sold into slavery, he was picked to become a gladiator because of his physical prowess. It was during a match that Spartacus' life changed, according to Howard Fast's novel "Spartacus," upon which the movie is based.

Pitted against Draba (Henry Simmons, "NYPD Blue"), Spartacus lost. According to gladiator rules, Draba must kill Spartacus, but he refuses and guards brutally slay Draba. Realizing that he, too, would rather die a free man than live as a slave, Spartacus snaps and the rebellion is born.

Spartacus and his troops move up and down the Apennines, freeing other slaves. The revolt he leads through the countryside sets Rome reeling. The senators, amid their usual conniving, dispatch Crassus (Angus Macfadyen, "Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood") to quell the revolt.

The film does a good job of showing the horrors of slavery and why a rebellion was bound to happen. Made in Bulgaria in stifling heat, it is exquisitely shot. The sets, particularly the Roman Senate, are excellent. Though it relies on a tired cliché of a woman telling a story to a boy, this device ultimately works because it shows the characters before and after slavery.

A major difference between this version and the original is the expanded role of Varinia, Spartacus' wife.

"You really get the sense that she is his fulcrum and springboard, and gives him the foresight and encouragement to embrace his talent," Rhona Mitra ("The Practice") says of her character. "She is this wonderful strength of feminine power... He embraces that, and they have such a true partnership."

At the film's outset, Varinia is seen frolicking on the grass, until marauding soldiers seize her and sell her into slavery. Spartacus is plucked from the gold mines to become a gladiator.

Potential owners inspect them the way farmers examine livestock. Are the teeth good? Does she have good hips for childbearing? To the overindulged Romans, the slaves are chattel.

Spartacus, however, never loses his quiet dignity and outrage. Visnjic is perfect as an angry man who evolves into a reluctant leader, but who assumes that mantle with grace and a ferocious spirit.

"There are very few men who are men," Mitra says of Visnjic. "He has humility and an innocence about him, everything that is required of Spartacus. You really need to see that balance of masculine power. He holds his ground and really works his socks off... He was out there weapons training every day with all the lads."

Simmons also put in plenty of work. "Regardless of all the physical exercise I put myself through, nothing can prepare you for having a trident and a net you swing over your head," he says. "You are out there fighting. You try to put yourself in the mind frame that you are fighting for your life. After five minutes, you are extremely tired. And the mindset I had, the only thing I have pushing me is I want to live."

Gladiators fought to the death for the amusement of Romans. The matches are terrific, and director Robert Dornheim ("Anne Frank") stages gruesome scenes without them getting too bloody.

Visnjic does his own stunts and takes swordplay seriously. "In the Academy of Dramatic Arts in Croatia, I had three years of sword fighting," he says. Even after fulfilling his requirements, Visnjic kept learning. The proof is in this movie, as he and other actors adroitly wield ancient weapons.

Initially, Visnjic worked with an aluminum sword, "but I wanted something heavier," he says. "So they made me a steel sword, sharp on the edges. Once you have it in your arm, you use each muscle."

Though Visnjic admits, "I hate the gym," he worked out three hours a day, six days a week for 45 days to get in shape for this role. Spartacus needs those muscles because he and a group of ragtag troops take on the world's best-armed soldiers.

'CSI' star once played Lana Lang on 'L&C'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q Didn't the character Lana Lang once appear in an episode of "Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman"? A.L. in El Paso, Texas.

A Yes. In a Jan. 21, 1996, "L&C" episode entitled "Tempus Any-one?" the urbane villain Tempus (Lane Davies) transported Lois Lane (Teri Hatcher) to an alternate reality, where she found Clark Kent (Dean Cain) engaged to his old high-school girlfriend, Lana Lang (Emily Procter, who went on to bigger success on "The West Wing" and her current gig, "CSI: Miami").

Q What can you tell me about PBS' upcoming "Colonial House"? -Jason in Chicago.

A From the producers of "The 1900 House," "Frontier House" and "Manor House," this new eight-part documentary series transports 26 contemporary men, women and children (selected from more than 5,000 applicants) to an isolated stretch along the Maine coast, where they struggle to cope with the living conditions that confronted early 17th-century American colonists.

Emily Procter

The series is scheduled to premiere May 17 on most PBS affiliates (check local listings).

Q What has Mark Valley been doing since the cancellation of "Keen Eddie"? I haven't seen him listed anywhere. -Nick from Buffalo, N.Y.

A "Keen Eddie" was the kind of "hip flop" that can help an actor's career even though the show itself fails. This season, Valley has guest starred on "ER" and the ABC sitcom "I'm With Her," and he recently filmed a pilot for an ABC series called "Harry Green and Eugene." That comedy-drama, which has a good shot for pickup in the fall, stars Valley as a Los Angeles private investigator with an inept younger brother (Jason Segel, "Freaks and Geeks").

Q I enjoy watching the talented Gina Gershon in all her movies. Is she related to Tracy Gershon, a judge on "Nashville Star"? -Candi via e-mail.

A Yes. They are sisters.

Jessica Simpson achieves 'Diva' status on VH1

By Mike Frey
© Zap2it

"This is amazing for me - I've always wanted to be a diva," says an excited Jessica Simpson, who despite some occasionally undivine behavior on MTV's "Newlyweds: Nick & Jessica," has been asked to perform on VH1's "Divas 2004" Sunday, April 18.

Who knows? Maybe splurging for $750 underwear and $1,400 Egyptian cotton bedsheets were enough to offset her "drop some kids in the pool" comment. Either way, the first-time diva will share the stage with Joss Stone, Cyndi Lauper, Debbie Harry, Patti LaBelle, Gladys Knight, Kylie Minogue and other celebrated ladies (and possibly gentlemen) when the concert airs live from the MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas.

Though Jessica might not know the difference between chicken and tuna, even she realizes the invitation to perform at "Divas 2004" probably has a lot to do with the popularity of "Newlyweds." Thanks to candid moments of calamity and confusion on the show, Simpson has risen to become one of pop music's brightest stars. But success has come at the expense of her and husband Nick Lachey's privacy, which unfortunately means the end is in sight for one of America's favorite guilty pleasures.

"Nick and I are on a break right now from the cameras, and it's awesome to not have somebody in your face 24/7," a relieved Jessica says. "I don't know how long (the show) will last. If anything, it won't go past one more season."

But that doesn't mean the couple doesn't appreciate the effect that allowing millions of viewers into their personal lives has had on their professional ones.

"(The show has) laid out a lot before us, which is really cool," she admits. "It's helped our careers; it's pushed our careers along, and it's really given people a chance to relate just to who we are as people. And that's the best kind of success you can have - when you have success from just being yourself."

That's precisely the advice Jessica is giving younger sister, Ashlee. In addition to starring on The WB Network's "7th Heaven," the younger sibling will be launching a reality series of her own on MTV. "The only advice I've ever given her is just to be yourself, and that's not hard for Ashlee," Jessica says. "Where it goes wrong is when people don't show their character flaws or don't show what's wrong in life - they only show the good stuff. People can't relate to that. I always tell Ashlee, 'Relax and don't think about making a TV show. Just live your life.'"

That mantra has led to Jessica's infamous Chicken of the Sea comment ("Is this chicken or is this fish?") and a reputation as a ditzy blonde. But with cameras around 24 hours a day, she knows she's bound to slip up every now and then, so she's learned to accept it.

"You know, that's just kind of my role; that's just kind of my character in life. It always has been ever since I was young," she says. "That's the best part about watching the show. You can sit back and relax and laugh, and I just do that along with everybody else."

Or at least she did. Jessica confesses that she and Nick don't often find time during their demanding schedules to sit down and watch the show anymore.

"The first season, we'd sit down and watch every episode," she recalls. "It's been a little hectic and a little crazy, so I haven't even seen the last two episodes that everybody else in the world has seen."

In addition to preparing for her "Divas 2004" performance, Jessica also has a fall sitcom project in the works for ABC ("My character is Jessica Sampson," she reports), and as "Newlyweds" viewers know, she recently launched a line of beauty products called Dessert. Something always seems to be occupying Jessica's time, whether it is a photo-shoot, a recording session, a TV appearance ... or hanging out with the Muppets.

"It was long!" she laughs, remembering her work on a recent Pizza Hut commercial. "It's a long process to work with the Muppets, because there are holes in every single couch and every single floor. It's crazy because there are so many people on set - everybody from puppet handlers to hair and makeup for Miss Piggy. There are so many people around when the Muppets are around. It definitely takes a long time to shoot something, but it's still very professional and adorable, and we had a blast."

At age 23, Jessica seems to have done it all in the entertainment business. She's been a pop singer, a reality TV star, an actress and a product spokesperson. Come Sunday night, whether she knows what Buffalo wings are made from or not, you can officially add diva to that list as well.

Jessica Simpson takes time out from her "Newlywed" series to be among the performers on "Divas 2004," which airs live Sunday on VH1.

Parton gets all Dolly-ed up to host CMT awards show

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

If you wonder if Dolly Parton remains enthusiastic about country music, listen to her talk about hosting the CMT Flameworthy Awards.

The flamboyant-and-proud-of-it superstar who loves to boast "it takes a lot to look this cheap" will spend a lot of time at the podium Wednesday, April 21. She presides over the third annual edition of the ceremony revealing fans' choices of favorite videos by country stars.

Airing on Country Music Television from Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., the two-hour show is slated to include performances by Parton, Toby Keith, Martina McBride, Sheryl Crow, Rascal Flatts, and Alison Krauss & Union Station.

"I'm very flattered that they asked me to do this," Country Music Hall of Fame member Parton says. "They had asked me another time or two and I wasn't available then. So this time, they asked early. I'm looking forward to it, because I think it's one of the best award shows on TV, right up there with the Country Music Association Awards. CMT goes all out for it, they've really been promoting it, and I've been doing all sorts of things for it. This is not a case of just showing up that night."

Having also been a host of the Country Music Association Awards and the American Music Awards, Parton reports that the norm is to "show up a couple of days beforehand, whereas with this, we've been working on it for a few months. CMT takes it seriously and so do I. They want me to make four or five costume changes during the show, so they're not just throwin' me out there. I hope I do good. If I do, maybe they'll ask me back - but I'll make 'em pay me next time! I'll really hit 'em up."

Parton has won many honors while making the awards-show rounds, but she feels the biggest difference with the CMT Flameworthy Awards is "the fans being so involved. It brings a different kind of energy, I think, while it gives all of us in country another chance to get together. They're sure getting some big acts on the show."

Some of them contributed to "Just Because I'm a Woman: The Songs of Dolly Parton," a tribute album released last fall. Another was Norah Jones, and Parton reciprocated by appearing on "Feels Like Home," Jones' latest album.

"We became good friends," Parton reports. "Some people you work with, you don't really care that much about; if you never saw them again, you wouldn't really feel like you'd lost a lot. Then there are people you make not only musical connections with, but heart connections, like Norah. I love her to death."

Parton's recent solo album - "For God & Country," a collection of patriotic and spiritual songs - is another sign of how busy she has been. So is a planned Broadway show about her life, for which she's writing the book and score. Also slated for the stage is "9 to 5," the hit 1980 comedy movie in which Parton starred and performed the title song she created; she's composing additional tunes for the new version.

"I've been very fortunate," she says. "Most artists my age who have been in this as long as I have, have not been as lucky to have kept their health and stay so active in the business. I like being able to bridge the gap between the 'old' country and the 'new' country, and to do it well. I never think of retiring, so I take every day as if I'm just starting out."

Minor league drivers follow dreams on CMT

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Each weekend, thousands of stock car drivers pursue auto racing's holy grail of reaching NASCAR's Nextel Cup circuit. Very few realize their dream.

Part of the reason is the odds. While the NFL, NBA, NHL and Major League Baseball each have hundreds of roster spots, NASCAR has disproportionately few - only 43 drivers sit behind the wheel of a Nextel Cup vehicle each race.

A new series on Country Music Television tells the story of seven minor league racers who risk everything in some cases to realize their dream. "The Drive," premiering Wednesday, April 21, and airing Fridays beginning April 30 thereafter, follows the trials and tribulations of people trying to defeat the odds and one another.

The characters are average people. There's Mike Herman Jr., a North Carolina pawnshop worker whose father sold the family business and cashed in his retirement fund so his son could follow his dream; Sarah McCune, an Ohio native who has already broken track records set by Jeff Gordon and Tony Stewart; Zach Niessner, a Washington state potato farmer's son; Mike Ritch, a former Busch Grand National driver whose lucky roll at a Las Vegas craps table bought him a second chance in racing; Davin Scites, a West Virginian with a budding short-track racing career and a marketing savvy girlfriend looking out for him; David Stover, an Oklahoma carpet salesman's son who is giving himself until age 30 to make NASCAR; and Michelle Theriault, a 17-year-old Georgia high-school senior with 12 years of racing experience under her belt.

All are compelling characters, according to Brian Phillips, CMT senior vice president and general manager, and that is what sold the network on the project. "What we found as we showed the early footage to people was that they were completely drawn in by the characters and the look and the feel and the atmosphere and the rhythm of the whole thing," he says. "The characters are certainly what people remember. The characters are what people take away. People walk out of a room, and it's hilarious because they believe that - and much of this show (at press time) has yet to be shot - that we have some inside information, and (know) what happens as the season progresses, and of course that hasn't happened yet. But we saw an unusually high number of people who had seen a little bit of the show and then stopped us later to try to find out more and to learn what the future held for those characters."

Probably the strongest character, at least in the opening episode, isn't even a driver. Scites' girlfriend, Susan Mims, is a public relations manager with some strong opinions on what Davin should be doing with his career. "That character is among the most remembered - everybody talks about her," Phillips says. "She appears to have his best interest in mind, but it certainly is complicated by their romance. He's sort of an all-American, I'm-gonna-go-out-and-do-what-I'm-gonna-do-and-give-it-my-best-shot. And yet, she's barking out orders. That certainly is one of the standout moments from the (premiere) episode."

Another is Theriault, who is driving competitively at an age when most teenagers are just learning to drive. "What parent of a (17-year-old) doesn't put her behind the wheel of a car and worry in general, (much less a race car)?" Phillips says. "Michelle, I think, is also very memorable because at first glance, I think in sort of the cynical expectations the audience might have of reality TV, my first impulse was, 'Oh, come on!' And then you realize that she can build a car from the chassis out, then you realize that she's a prodigy, and she does understand, she's a legitimate driver. She can calculate torque and things. So, she's a heroine, I think, within the show. ... She comports herself very well on the track."

Another aspect that Phillips finds fascinating is the sacrifices the drivers are willing to make. "It kind of debunks the myth that ... money gushes everywhere, that everybody's got all the money they need from endorsements, and everyone who ever gets behind a wheel of a car is somehow set for life financially by virtue of their sponsors. And these guys are fighting and clawing and clamoring for every dime, and they're making life-and-sometimes-family-changing decisions based on their need to keep the dream alive. And to me, that's putting more on the line than a guy who's got a multimillion dollar sponsor in his corner and is covered one way or the other."

tonight, and ABC's corporate partner ESPN.

"MLB Baseball" Sunday, April 18 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): Besides the continuing Yankees-Red Sox war, the talk of the offseason was the improvement made by the Anaheim Angels. With the additions of Vladimir Guerrero and Jose Guillen to the offense and its revamped pitching staff, the Angels believe they are much better than the team that finished 2003 19 games behind the Oakland A's, their opponent tonight, in the A.L. ## Soap Talk

Taking a look back at the starting line

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

They all had to begin somewhere. On Wednesday, April 21, SOAPnet takes a look at former soap stars who have gone on to prime-time and film fame in "They Started on Soaps 2."

Longtime fans of daytime television watched as "Another World's" Anne Heche went on to star with Harrison Ford in "Six Days, Seven Nights," and "The Young and the Restless'" Tom Selleck became "Magnum, p.i." The one-hour special looks at the early careers of Jennifer Lopez, Courteney Cox Arquette, Kate Capshaw and Robert DeNiro, among others.

"It is always interesting to see what people looked like then, and because it is television, it is also, 'What did they sound like?'" executive producer Linda Ellerbee says. A great idea.

A lot of research went into locating the clips for the special and sadly, some of Ellerbee's leads didn't pan out because the footage was destroyed. In addition to catching glimpses of our favorite former stars, experts discuss the actors and what makes daytime such a great proving ground.

For her part, Ellerbee admits that until she started working on the show, she didn't appreciate daytime television. She says, "I think the one thing all the actors share is dedication, concentration and skill. If you work in daytime drama, you have to be prepared on any given day to run a gamut of emotions and to memorize a ton of dialogue. So, if you have done time on the soaps, you've got the chops."

The first special re-aired Saturday and features Demi Moore, Brad Pitt and Julianne Moore.

Dear Paulette: Is Jack Wagner's song "Going Back Again" available in stores? The song/music is excellent, and I really like the actor as Nick. I'd love to see Nick and Brooke together, but it looks as if we're going to get the same old story of Brooke with Ridge. Too bad. Bravo, Jack Wagner! - Sherrie Johnston, Sacramento, Calif.

Dear Reader: At this time, the only way you can get "Going Back Again" is to download it off <http://www.cbs.com/daytime/bb/>. The cost is 99 cents.

It's time for a man-to-child conversation between Bernie and Jordan (Bernie Mac, Jeremy Suarez) in the new episode "The Talk." Jordan shows a preference for grown-up magazines and video games, so Bernie seeks advice from Hugh Hefner—who guest stars as himself—in preparing to explain “the birds and the bees.” Jordan needs the talk even more when he thinks he made a girl pregnant just by kissing her.

Wednesday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

That '70s Show

Despite their pledge of premarital celibacy, Eric and Donna (Tophers Grace, Laura Prepon) decide to break it secretly for just one night in the new episode "Squeeze Box." Before that evening can occur, Mitch (guest star Seth Green) shocks Donna with something he tells her about Eric. Red and Hyde (Kurtwood Smith, Danny Masterson) get a new view of Pamela (guest star Brooke Shields).

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

A gas that emanated from the now-defunct planet Krypton serves as a truth serum that Chloe (Allison Mack) tries to use to her advantage in the new episode "Truth." She attempts to get the truth about Clark (Tom Welling) from his Earth parents (Annette O'Toole, John Schneider), but she doesn't realize the gas could prove fatal to her. Clark races to find an antidote before it's too late.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

The Most Outrageous Moments on Live TV

No, Janet Jackson's Super Bowl performance is not included in this new special, but you'll find recaps of many other unexpected incidents that were shown live. In truth, relatively little broadcast television is genuinely live anymore, so newscasts and "Today" segments provide much of this hour's material. Those caught in camera range include Jamie Lee Curtis and former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

The O.C.

Julie (Melinda Clarke) is the guest of honor at a wedding shower that Marissa (Mischa Barton) is determined to make unforgettable in the new episode "The Shower." Ryan (Benjamin McKenzie) is stunned to learn the reason Teresa (guest star Navi Rawat) is back in Newport Beach. Seth (Adam Brody) has an unsettling first encounter with Summer's (Rachel Bilson) father (Michael Nouri).

Alexis Denisoef

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Angel

Angel (David Boreanaz) is stunned to discover that the son of two people looking for help is Angel's own son, Connor (guest star Vincent Kartheiser), in the new episode "Origin." The youth doesn't recall his past with Angel, who is torn about what to do. Wesley (Alexis Denisoef) learns of a Wolfram & Hart deal that could have a huge impact on Angel.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The West Wing

"The Promise," a new episode directed by series co-star Richard Schiff, puts Josh (Bradley Whitford) in a tough spot when he learns the president's (Martin Sheen) view on jobs being transferred from the United States to other countries. C.J. (Allison Janney) disputes the FCC's permission for media conglomerates to own more TV stations. Mary McCormack ("Traffic") guest stars as the new deputy national security adviser.

8 p.m. on TVLND

TV Land Moguls

It takes more than stars to generate a hit show; it also takes producers who are willing to see a vision through and sometimes defend it against network executives who want to change it. This new series, hosted by Merv Griffin, profiles behind-the-scenes legends who have given television some of its most classic series. The first episode showcases several people who were famous as both stars and producers: Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz and Danny Thomas.

8:30 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Stones

Wendie Malick ("Just Shoot Me") guest stars as Barbara's (Judith Light) newly slim sibling, Gail, in the new episode "She Ain't Heavy, She's My Sister." Barbara is more than willing to help her suddenly svelter relative start her life over — until she discovers exactly what Gail's plans are.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

The murder of a widely despised New York Yankees fan sends Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) on a hunt for a possibly homicidal baseball devotee in the new episode "Vendetta." Their likeliest suspect turns out to be an ex-con who was jailed for a killing he didn't commit, prompting the police detectives to revise their hunches.

Tru Calling

Tru (Eliza Dushku) is confused about a deceased man (Derek Hamilton) who has the same name as one of her neighbors (Andrea Anders) in the new episode "Rear Window." When she goes back in time, Tru can't determine which person was the intended victim. Davis (Zach Galifianakis) helps Tru figure out more of Jack's (Jason Priestley) background.

7:30 p.m. on 38-WB

Like Family

Keith's (J Mack Slaughter) estranged and typically unreliable father (guest star David Lee Smith) resurfaces just before Keith's 17th birthday, much to Maddy's (Diane Farr) concern, in the new episode "Roger Returns." Tanya (Holly Robinson Peete) also worries about the wayward man's arrival when she learns how Ed (Kevin Michael Richardson) has been assisting him.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Stephen King's Kingdom Hospital

A heart-transplant candidate has a rough time — to put it mildly — after he enters Kingdom Hospital in the new episode "Heartless." In an unlikely place, Dr. Hook (Andrew McCarthy) finds ancient newspaper clips that detail exactly what happened in the mid-19th-century Gates Falls Mills fire.

Will & Grace

Jack's (Sean Hayes) nursing-school commencement speech may come close to a Shakespearean monologue, thanks to Will (Eric McCormack), in the new episode "Speechless." Will agrees to help write the address, but his own desire to be a playwright kicks in — turning the speech into an epic recollection of Jack's inspiration to pursue a career as a male nurse.

Movie: Vanilla Sky

This 2001 relearning of Tom Cruise and director Cameron Crowe is a trippy remake of the Spanish film "Open Your Eyes." Cruise plays a reckless New Yorker who has it all until an ex-flame (Cameron Diaz) involves him in a car accident. Penelope Cruz, who also became Cruise's off-screen partner for a time (and starred in the original version), plays his love interest.

The aptly named Rowdy Herrington ("Road House") directed this 1993 Bruce Willis shoot'em-up. Demoted to river rescue duty, he finds more bodies, a new partner, a new love interest (Sarah Jessica Parker) and — eventually — the killer.

Saturday Best Bets

6 p.m. on ESPN2

NFL Draft

NFL junkies — and you know who you are — wear out a few more springs in their favorite cushioned furniture to catch all the pick-to-pick coverage of the NFL Draft. The first five selections belong to, in order, San Diego, Oakland, Arizona, the New York Giants and Washington, and Larry Fitzgerald, Eli Manning and Roy Williams are among the top players available. In all, ESPN and ESPN2 will air a whopping 17 hours of the two-day draft.

Movie: Almost Famous

Named one of 2000's best pictures by many critics, writer-director Cameron Crowe's comedy-drama recalls his days as a rock-music journalist. Played by Patrick Fugit, a young reporter hits the road with a band that has a charismatic leader (Billy Crudup). An appealing groupie (Kate Hudson) is along for the literal and figurative ride, too. Frances McDormand and Jason Lee also star.

Movie: Space Cowboys

This lighthearted 2000 adventure stars Clint Eastwood, James Garner, Donald Sutherland and Tommy Lee Jones as former astronaut wannabes who missed their chance to go into space in the late 1950s. But an old satellite is on a collision course with Earth, and only engineer Frank Corvin (Eastwood) knows how to save the day. He rounds up his old flyboy buddies to boldly go where no senior citizen — except John Glenn — has gone before.

7 p.m. on AMC

Movie: The Dead Zone

It isn't hard to determine that this 1983 chiller springs from the mind of Stephen King. He had another best seller with the tale of a teacher (played by an ideally cast Christopher Walken) who emerges from a lengthy coma with the ability to "see" the past and the future. Martin Sheen, Tom Skerritt, Brooke Adams and Colleen Dewhurst also star.

7 p.m. and BRAV

Movie: Good Will Hunting

Robin Williams won his first Oscar for this 1997 drama, and co-stars Matt Damon and Ben Affleck shared a statuette for best screenplay. Will (Damon) is working as a janitor at a university when his amazing talent for math is discovered by a professor who encourages him to use it. But emotional baggage and loyalty to his blue-collar buds have him resisting. A therapist (Williams) with issues of his own attempts to unlock Will's potential.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

A young illegal immigrant's murder leads Mannion (Craig T. Nelson) to a car-theft operation run by other youths in the new episode "Ten Thirty Three." A law that would let the police department treat the teens as adult offenders is invoked by Mannion. He also seeks the help of lawyer Vanessa Cavanaugh (guest star Jacyln Smith) in reuniting Gwen (Vanessa Bell Calloway) with her estranged son.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"MASTER AND COMMANDER: THE FAR SIDE OF THE WORLD": A recent Oscar winner for cinematography and sound editing, director Peter Weir's epic drama adapts two of Patrick O'Brian's novels about British naval captain Jack Aubrey (Russell Crowe), who commands the HMS Surprise in pursuit of the French warship Acheron. Aubrey and his crew are stunned to find themselves outmatched ... and even if they lose the first round, it doesn't mean the battle is over, especially with the determined Aubrey at the helm. Paul Bettany, also Crowe's co-star in "A Beautiful Mind," plays the Surprise's surgeon. DVD extras: "making-of" documentaries; theatrical trailers; TV spots; deleted scenes; art galleries; interactive sound-recording demo; multiple-angle and split-screen features. *** (PG-13: P, V)

"THE HAUNTED MANSION": Like "Pirates of the Caribbean: The Curse of the Black Pearl," this horror comedy was inspired by a Disney theme-park ride. Not unexpectedly, the lavish production design is the movie's real star, but Eddie Murphy heads the cast as a real-estate man who checks out a foreboding house while he and his family are en route to a vacation. Bad move: The place has a sinister past that might affect the new visitors - permanently.

Video Vantage

"WIN A DATE WITH TAD HAMILTON": In this winningly performed comedy, a bad-boy movie star's (Josh Duhamel, "Las Vegas") bid to improve his image means excitement for a small-town grocery clerk (Kate Bosworth, "Blue Crush") who lands a date with him. This means heartache for the friend and co-worker (Tophér Grace, "That '70s Show") who loves her, Nathan Lane and Sean Hayes ("Will & Grace") play the actor's agent and manager. Added scenes that weren't shown in theaters feature Paris Hilton. DVD extras: deleted scenes; outtakes; cast auditions; photo gallery. *** (PG-13: AS, P)

"SWEENEY TODD: THE DEMON BARBER OF FLEET STREET": Angela Lansbury re-creates her Tony Award-winning performance alongside George Hearn in this 1982 staging of the twisted tale of murder, revenge and ... pies, from one of musical theater's biggest names, Stephen Sondheim. Beloved barber Sweeney Todd (Hearn) wrongfully is imprisoned by a judge who has eyes for Todd's wife. Years later, Todd returns to London and befriends Mrs. Lovett (Lansbury), a pie-shop owner who teams up with Todd for revenge and unusual culinary creations. *** (Not rated: AS, V)

"PLAYMAKERS: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": ESPN leaned towards its entertainment side with this ensemble drama, the sports network's first foray into scripted television (which wasn't renewed for a second year, possibly because of NFL complaints). The saga follows the mostly off-the-field happenings of members of a pro football team coached by Mike George (Anthony John Denison, "Crime Story"). His charges include a cocky running back (Omar Gooding), a graying veteran (Russell Hornsby) and a rising defensive star (Jason Matthew Smith). *** (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"WILD THINGS 2": The "fun" isn't over yet, as this made-for-video sequel to the 1998 thriller delves into more steamy scheming by two lovely young women. One girl (Susan Ward, "The In Crowd") is devastated when her wealthy stepfather dies, seemingly putting an end to her pampered lifestyle. A classmate (Leila Arcieri, "Daddy Day Care") makes a bid for the man's fortune, pitting the two peers against each other in a dangerous all-or-nothing pursuit. Isaiah Washington ("Romeo Must Die") co-stars. DVD extras: theatrical trailers; "making-of" documentary. ** (R: AS, P, V)

Some combinations are blissfully foolproof. To bake a great cake, use premium ingredients such as fresh butter, rich chocolate and finely sifted flour. The same approach applies to cultural treats. For superior results, only the best ingredients should be used.

In the case of PBS' "Great Performances: Dance in America," that means combining Shakespeare, choreographer Sir Frederick Ashton, composer Felix Mendelssohn and the American Ballet Theatre. The result is a magnificent rendition of "The Dream" Wednesday, April 21 (check local listings).

The short ballet is a fairy tale and as such is easy to understand, even for those who traditionally shy away from men in tights. This is also an ideal ballet for children because any program that has a man turn into a toe-dancing donkey is just plain fun.

The one-act dance, recorded live in July 2003 at the Orange County Performing Arts Center in Costa Mesa, Calif., takes place at night in a forest. Pierce Brosnan introduces the ballet, which Ashton choreographed to commemorate the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's birth. It is based on "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The story opens in a magical kingdom as fairies in gossamer wings fill the stage. Oberon (Ethan Stiefel) and Titania (Alessandra Ferri) argue over a changeling, and a sprite, Puck (Herman Cornejo), bounds in. Oberon, miffed at Titania, puts drops from an enchanted flower in her eyes. Whenever that magical nectar is flicked into the eyes of sleeping people, they fall in love with the first creature they see upon awakening.

Puck has fun as a wayward matchmaker. He has people fall in love with others' intended, causing fights and lovers' quarrels to ensue.

Puck causes Titania to fall in love with a donkey (Julio Bragado-Young), and their pas de deux is a true delight as the danseur does what is so rarely seen - perform on his toes.

Puck continues to muck about until Oberon orders him to fix everything, and Puck creates a fog so he can get all the couples right. This being a fairy tale, everyone lives happily ever after.

Perhaps the sole annoyance in an otherwise sublime performance is a few singing parts that threaten to overwhelm the action. Still, the story is rich enough and the dancing exuberant enough to override this distraction.

Given the gorgeous costumes, classic choreography and music, the dancers love performing this piece.

"I have done the Balanchine version and the Ashton version," Ferri says. "They are very, very different, a very different concept of the role. In the Balanchine version, she is an extremely feminine creature. In the Ashton version, there is a little bit of a dark side. Even Oberon is much more complex, so it was nice to do both."

"The choreography is very complicated," Ferri continues. "Going back to Balanchine, it is much easier. Ashton is known for how intricate the steps are. It is also surprisingly very fast. We always think of American dancing to be very fast, but this is extremely fast for everybody. It is amazingly fast in the feet and languid in the top half - like you almost need two bodies."

For Cornejo, one body certainly suffices. Every once in a while, viewers are lucky enough to see someone who is so perfect for a role it seems as if he were born for it. This is Cornejo as Puck. A powerfully built, small danseur, Cornejo leaps as if the stage is a springboard. With horns, pointy ears and a costume fashioned to look as if it is made out of leaves, Cornejo becomes the mischievous wood dryad.

"It is a great role, and I just love doing it," Cornejo says from his Manhattan apartment after a day of rehearsing "Swan Lake." "It is very hard when you are tired because there is no stopping. It is a ballet where you jump and turn from beginning to end."

Michael Jordan had the basketball world cornered on his ability to stay suspended in air, and in ballet that honor now belongs to Cornejo. "Since I was little, I like to jump," he says.

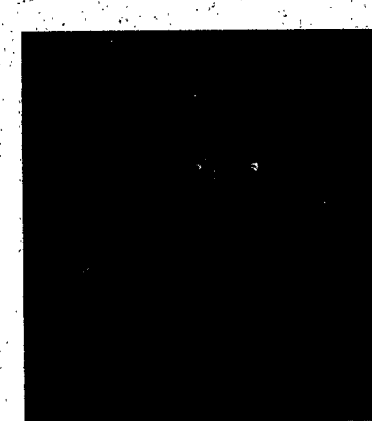

As magnificent as Stiefel and Ferri are in the romantic leads, Cornejo steals this ballet with his leaps and sprightly presence. He says the worst part about playing Puck are "the ears." The pointy appendages, which are glued onto his ears, are painful to take off.

"Once you get up on stage, you forget about it," he says, "because you are pulled into this amazing story."

"This is definitely a challenging role," Stiefel says. "After you have performed it, you feel you really accomplished something. It is extremely difficult stamina-wise because everything comes toward the end of the ballet."

"If this is the first time people are seeing a ballet, it is almost the perfect ballet because of the way it flows and how people can get into the story right away and how accessible it is," Stiefel says. "I just hope they can sit back and truly enjoy it, and that experience will get them into theaters. I saw it in high definition and it was awesome, but you never get the experience of being surrounded by people there to see a performance."

Alessandra Ferri as Titania and Julio Bragado-Young as a bumpkin-turned-donkey in PBS' "Great Performances: Dance in America: The Dream With American Ballet Theatre" Wednesday.
